Managing water in our towns and cities is a key challenge for many organisations. Collaboration and working in partnership, however, can realise multiple benefits including reducing flood risk, improved water quality, enhanced biodiversity and amenity, and boosting community health and wellbeing.

This workshop will focus upon a collaborative approach to integrated urban water management, encompassing:

- Examples of local collaborations in delivery
- Case studies and examples nationwide illustrating how catchment partnerships and other key stakeholders can deliver multiple benefits through a collaborative approach
- Advice on planning for better water management and delivery of sustainable drainage
- A Natural Capital Approach to Urban Water Management

The workshop will be held on January 17th at Kettering Conference and Leisure Village and is open to Local Authorities, including planners, highways and flood risk specialists, CaBA Partnerships, Water Companies and other stakeholders interested in integrated Urban Water Management. Lunch will be provided. To book your free place and get more information about the workshop programme contact: Denise Horn on 01536 526451 or denise@rnrp.org
